

The Musician. In the next three years, Government will cut funding for music education by 25%, on top of local authority cuts. Music Services will unite in local partnerships to be known as 'Hubs'. Will Hubs succeed in softening the blow? Or will they just put teachers' employment, our children's education and the future of music in England at serious risk?

Autumn 2012.

Journal of the Musicians' Union
theMU.org

